Celebrating 80 Years of Nursing Education Excellence

This fall, LSUHSC School of Nursing faculty, staff, and students will celebrate 80 years of nursing education. Our 80th Anniversary Celebration will be at the Ogden Museum of Southern Art on Saturday, November 2, 2013 at 7:00 pm. Tickets and sponsorship to this event can be secured at <https://give.lsuhealthfoundation.org/school-of-nursing-80th-celebration>. I look forward to visiting with you at our celebration. During this event, our nursing school will be celebrating:

- 80 years of baccalaureate education;
- 50 years of continuous nursing accreditation;
- 45 years as an autonomous school within the health sciences center;
- Over 40 years of Master of Nursing education;
- Over 30 years of providing nationally accredited continuing nursing education; and
- Over 28 years of Doctor of Nursing Science education.

Our Fall 2013 semester will be an exciting and busy time for our nursing school. The first Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) class will graduate this fall. In addition, we have admitted our first class of Bachelor of Science in Nursing to Doctor of Nursing Practice (BSN to DNP) nurse anesthesia students in the Summer 2013 semester. Our graduate nursing faculty are actively planning the curriculums for BSN to DNP in the population and foci areas of neonatal nurse practitioner, primary care family nurse practitioner, nursing administration, adult/gerontology clinical nurse specialist, and public/community health nursing. The Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (CCNE) will be conducting an on-site accreditation visit of the post-masters DNP program this October. We have admitted our largest number of Primary Care Family Nurse Practitioner students ever, this fall – a total of 45 students.

Research at ILH: Grant Opportunities for LSUHSC School of Nursing's Faculty and Students

by Marsha Bennett, DNS, APRN, ACRN

Keithen D. Potts, RN, BSN, is the RN Clinical Research Coordinator for the Department of Clinical Research at the Interim LSU Public Hospital (ILH). In this role, he assures hospital compliance with all clinical research, and has oversight of research and quality improvement projects at ILH. He directs the individual credentialing process for researchers and research staff, and functions as a liaison between the researchers and the hospital nurse managers and supervisors.

Mr. Potts meets regularly with hospital nurse managers and supervisors to apprise them of what projects are approved for their areas, what these projects will entail, work out any accommodations, and delineate the scope of practice for all of the research staff. This centralized role was created in December 2012 by Dr. Juzar Ali, Interim CEO and Medical Director, as a way to better manage and organize all of the research activities occurring within ILH, and to overcome the fragmentation of research services.

Keithen Potts is pro-nursing and supports nursing research at ILH. "We would like nursing to do more research at ILH, to enable nursing to fast forward into the future." In a recent discussion Mr. Potts also stated that he would like to see more nursing research and more nursing clinical projects at ILH. He mentioned that ILH could draw upon the skills of the nursing faculty for their expertise in research and quality improvement initiatives, and that the faculty could, in turn, benefit from the identification of research projects at ILH. Both research-focused doctoral students and practice-focused doctoral students could partner with ILH to conduct their projects at ILH, working with ILH to identify problem areas and derive either research or evidence-based solutions.

For more information, contact Keithen Potts at 504.903.3697 or kpotts@lsuhsc.edu.

Dr. Deborah Garbee has been appointed to the LSNA Board of Directors as Chair of the Clinical Practice Committee.

Dr. Scharalda Jeanfreau has been appointed Associate Professor - Clinical by the LSU Board of Supervisors.

Dr. Jane Sumner has been appointed Emeritus Professor by the LSU Board of Supervisors. Dr. Sumner was honored at a retirement celebration held on June 4th.

NURS 4358 Students Start Health Promotion Activities with the Residents of Village de Jardin

by Ellen Beyer MN, PHCNS-BC, APRN, MBA

During the Spring 2013 semester, Senior I nursing students in Population-Focused Nursing Practicum (NURS 4358) started weekly primary and secondary health promotion activities in the Village de Jardin. These health promotion activities took place in two five-week rotations.

In the first rotation, students Lacey Allphin and Allison Champagne conducted a needs assessment of the residents and tailored nursing interventions based on the results. Blood pressure screenings were conducted in the lobby of the tower building from 10 am to 2 pm. The screenings were followed by a walking group and Bingo in the afternoon. Formal teaching on blood pressure, chair exercises, and diabetes was conducted by Latia Guderan, Danielle Randolph, Nickolas Skias, Joshua Mayeaux, Allison Champagne, and Lacey Allphin. Between 5 to 10 residents had their blood pressure screened daily and participated in the walking groups. Bingo was attended by 10 to 15 residents. The following students participated in this first rotation: Latia Guderan, Danielle Randolph, Nickolas Skias, Joshua Mayeaux, Mallory Dupriest, Julia Athmann, Genevieve Claypool, and Kira Riches.

The second rotation began in late February. Students Allison Mader and Meghan O'Quinn were assigned to the Village de Jardin. They continued the activities started in the first rotation and conducted a formal teaching on required screenings for older adults and health promotion. The following students participated in this second rotation: Lauren Caponegro, Kimyen Nguyen, Beth Kessler, Mallory gurtner, Ainsley Anderson, John Schexnaldre, Eryn Dausat, and Brandi Harris.

At the conclusion of the rotation, the students conducted an evaluation. Comments from the residents included:

"The students were very helpful."

"Everything was done well. One could say exceptional."

"The students were thoughtful, considerate, and helpful."

"They were encouraging."

"I loved the students."

"I love having the students."

BSN Student Alexander Wong Awarded 2013 Cantrell Citizenship Award

Each year, New Orleans City Council member Latoya Cantrell presents citizenship awards to students in her district. Students are selected for their scholastic achievement, civic awareness, and community service. To qualify for the award, students must meet the following criteria: volunteer services to the community, involvement in citizenship or character building organizations, a good scholastic record, participation in student government programs and school activities, faithful school attendance, and leadership qualities that motivate others to service.

At the May 16th meeting of the New Orleans City Council, BSN student Alexander Wong was presented with the 2013 Cantrell Citizenship Award. Mr. Wong was nominated by the School of Nursing faculty and administrative team for this award.

Mr. Wong has been actively involved in community service since his enrollment in the School of Nursing in January 2011. He is a active member and officer of the Student Government Association and the Student Nurses Association and served as Senior I class officer during the spring 2013 semester. He has participated in the Louisiana Association of Student Nurses convention the last two years.

As a male student of Asian descent, Mr. Wong serves as a student representative on the LSUHSC Multicultural Advisory Committee and was recently inducted into the Epsilon Nu Chapter of Sigma Theta Tau International Honor Society. Students must be in the top third of their class to be eligible for induction into Epsilon Nu.

In his role as the SNA's Breakthrough to Nursing Representative, he is actively involved in coordinating the providing outreach programs to local high schools and universities in the community for students who are interested in nursing school. This includes assisting them in understanding the application process to LSUHSC School of Nursing. In addition, Mr. Wong shares his real life experiences as a student nurse and how one can balance school, community service, and personal time.

Congratulations to Alexander for receiving this honor!

Alexander and his parents.

SNA Update

by Meghan O'Quinn

The Student Nurses' Association (SNA) had quite a semester this spring! There were 11 volunteer events and four donation collections over the course of the semester. In addition, many SNA members traveled to Charlotte in April for the national convention. SNA looks forward to more opportunities to reach out to the community in the future. Here is an update on SNA involvement since the last publication.

On March 23rd, 17 SNA members spent the day with Habitat for Humanity. Volunteers mixed cement and built a sidewalk. During the month of March, SNA collected donations for the Ronald McDonald House, which houses and feeds families who have to travel to receive specialized medical care for their children. SNA collected paper products and snacks for the Ronald McDonald House.

April was a big month for SNA. There were 24 SNA members who attended the 61st Annual National Student Nurses' Association Convention from April 3rd to April 7th in Charlotte, North Carolina. Members who attended had the opportunity to attend numerous focus sessions. Members who served as delegates at the convention voted on various resolutions that were presented by students from across the country.

On April 13th, SNA members volunteered at the Second Harvest Food Bank warehouse, sorting and packing food to contribute to Second Harvest's mission to fight hunger in south Louisiana. On April 15th, SNA held the second blood drive of the semester. There were 60 units of blood donated, which can save up to 180 lives! Forty-three of the units were donated in the name of Micah, a 15-year-old boy diagnosed with Hodgkin's lymphoma. He has received over 600 transfusions and is constantly in need of more transfusions. Every unit donated in his name made a difference for his future blood needs.

On April 20th, SNA again worked with Habitat for Humanity for a day spent building affordable homes. On April 27th, 6 SNA members volunteered at the Green Project. Members helped with lumber yard deconstruction, paint recycling, and unloading materials donated to the warehouse. The Green Project is an organization that recycles building supplies that would otherwise go into landfills.

During the month of April, SNA collected donations for Raintree, an organization that provides housing and care for girls aged 12-17 who are abused or neglected. SNA collected art and school supplies, towels, combs, brushes, socks, and after school snacks. Altogether, 115 items were donated!

After the semester was over, SNA continued to be active in the community. On May 10th, SNA volunteered at a pajama party at St. Michael's Special School. St. Michael's is a school for disabled children and adults. Volunteers painted nails, did face paint, helped to make Mother's Day cards, and played musical chairs with the students who attended. On May 11th, SNA volunteered at the Children's World Fair at the Children's Museum. There were 17 volunteers who worked this event. On May 18th, SNA volunteered at Great Strides, a walk to benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Twenty-one SNA members volunteered at this event, and a few of them did the walk as well. Volunteers helped to serve food after the walk and helped at the kids' corner.

SNA enjoyed having such an active semester and looks forward to continued connecting with the community! Please visit our webpage for a list of upcoming activities:

Future Nurses Institute (FNI) Summer Camp

Each summer, the School of Nursing provides an unparalleled immersion opportunity for under-represented minority high school students considering nursing as a profession through its Future Nurses Institute (FNI) Summer Camp. The FNI is the outgrowth of a previous HRSA grant to promote nursing to under-represented minorities within the metro New Orleans area. While the grant funding no longer exists, the School of Nursing has continued to provide the opportunity. The School of Nursing partners with the School of Medicine Community and Minority Health Education's Summer Science Program, under the direction of Dr. Edward Helm, to offer the three day immersion camp.

The camp has been held annually since 2008 and has been unfunded since 2009. Faculty members volunteer their time and the School of Nursing donates the use of the facility and equipment to assist with the camp. This summer, thirteen junior and senior students from schools such as Xavier University Preparatory High School, St. Augustine High School, St. Mary's Academy High School, and Warren Easton High School participated.

The three day camp consisted of lectures and hands-on experience within the School of Nursing's hospital lab and simulation lab. Students experienced birthing simulations and listened to breath and heart sounds on high-fidelity simulators that are programmed to respond to certain patient scenarios. Panel discussions with School of Nursing faculty members, who are experts in their respective fields of nursing, were also presented.

"It is our goal that the students comprehend the commitment, dedication and serious academic work it takes to be a successful nursing student; along with understanding that the faculty are available to mentor them as students," notes Khaleelah Hasan, MN, RN, LSUHSC Clinical Nursing Instructor, who directs the FNI Summer Camp. Under the leadership and support of Dr. Demetrius Porche, Dean of the School of Nursing, the camp continues to strive to provide this opportunity for area high school students.
